A new priest begins his term at a new parish. And he preaches a pretty good first homily. The next week, a few people notice that THIS week’s homily sounds an awful lot like LAST week’s homily. The next week, SEVERAL people notice that this homily sounds a lot like the last couple of weeks, and by the NEXT week, everybody is certain that, yes, the priest has been preaching the same homily for the last four weeks. So finally somebody brings it up to the new priest and he says, “Well, I figured I wouldn’t get a new homily until you did what I told you to do in the first one.”

Today you will hear some things in the homily that sound sort of familiar. We are covering ground we have covered before. Once again we hear Jesus speak about LOVE, and no matter how many times you have heard it, we need to be reminded again and again. “I give you a new commandment: love one another. As I have loved you, so you also should love one another. This is how all will know that you are my disciples, if you have love for one another.”

For example when you stop at a red light and no one else is there, and you wait for it to turn green rather than driving on through, do you do it because you are looking out for the common good of all motorists? Or do you do it because there might be a police officer hiding somewhere or a camera taking your details? And I can tell you from bitter experience, you would be surprised how many cameras there are and where police officers can hide.

So maybe we REALLY SHOULD take Jesus seriously on this one. Maybe Jesus really did mean that love is for THE WHOLE WORLD. It’s for the people who cut us off in traffic. It’s for the kid screaming in the next booth over at your favorite restaurant. It’s for the police officer who catches you running a red light. There is plenty for us to condemn in the world, and plenty to make us angry - political corruption, promiscuity, profanity, lewdness, failures, insults, indignities and just plain problems. You name it, we got it. But the record seems to show that Christians make their greatest strides when we overcome our willingness to be selfish, and our desire to harm those who have harmed us. In this way they will know we will we are Christians by our love for one another.

Keeping that commandment is hard because the temptations not to love are great. We tend to think of ourselves before the other. But Jesus seems to be insisting that we MUST take LOVE seriously. He gives us a commandment to love one another – not a suggestion or a proposal but a COMMAND.

Second Collection Next Weekend
Catholic Elementary Schools

The second collection next weekend will benefit the elementary schools of the Diocese and the thousands of children whose lives are enriched by these schools every day. Our schools provide a strong, quality Catholic education with high academic standards and where our faith is learned and lived. They are places where our Roman Catholic Faith is passed onto the next generation and provide our Diocese with a high profile expression of our common mission to evangelize. Everyone who passes our buildings or who sees one of our children in uniform has to say to themselves that the Roman Catholic Faith is alive and relevant. Your continued support for our elementary schools and for the Tomorrow’s Hope Foundation, the charity here on Long Island that provides tuition assistance to deserving families who desire a Catholic school education for their children, is critical to the schools’ success. Please be as generous as possible in next week’s special collection.

Andrew Tulley & Kelly Edelman
Hi Everyone,

Today’s Gospel is a short one but has quite an impact. Jesus reminds his followers that he will be with them only for a while, but then commanded them to “love one another. As I have loved you, so you should love one another.”

What does that mean for us now in our lives? How do we love one another? What does that mean in your school? We are called to love each other even if we don’t agree with one another. That can be difficult, I know. We need to see every person as a child of God and someone made in the image and likeness of God. Believe it or not, seeing others that way will help us as well.

What does this command mean at home? I think sometimes we take our family for granted. We can sometimes be kinder to our friends than family. Maybe you have a sibling that you don’t get along with. What does Jesus command of “love one another” mean in that case? Maybe it means to help them out when they need it. Spend time with them.

Our Holy Father, Pope Francis, sends this message in his writings and in his life. Again, we can stand up for our beliefs and still love each other. That is quite a challenge, but let’s see what happens when we try it!

Peggy

Congratulations to our teens! They made it to the Finals in the last Holy Hour/Dodgeball for this school year.

Each month hundreds of young people go to pray for vocations in our Diocese. This month Bishop Murphy was the speaker. Afterward there are Dodgeball games and food! Please continue to pray for vocations!
