God of wisdom and might,

We praise you for the wonder of our being,

For mind, body and spirit.

Be with our children as they begin a new school year.

Bless them and their teachers and staff.

Give them strength and grace as their bodies grow;

wisdom and knowledge to their minds

as they search for understanding;

and peace and zeal to their hearts.

We ask this through Jesus Christ our Lord.

Amen.
“Take away from us our iniquities, we beseech Thee, O Lord, that we may be worthy to enter with pure minds the Holy of Holies; through Christ our Lord. Amen.” These were the prayers that the priest would say in a whisper as he would come up to the altar of God during Mass. Although these prayers have been removed from the current Roman Missal in English, I say them silently.

Each time we go to Mass and even when we simply make a visit to Jesus in the Blessed Sacrament we are entering the Holy of Holies. We are going to the most sacred of all places.

My pastor would joke that so many people travel thousands of miles to visit sacred shrines, when they could simply visit the Blessed Sacrament in their own parishes and be with Jesus in the most personal and direct way possible. He was kidding when he said this, but he does have a point.

I personally enjoy visiting shrines, but shrines in themselves all point to Jesus Christ in the Eucharist. Last week I made my annual retreat at the Shrine of Saint John Vianney in Ars, France. It was a place that I would like to visit again.

At Mass you may notice there is a veil over the priest’s chalice. This shows the sacredness of what is being offered to God, and how it is gradually revealed to the faithful. First, the chalice is covered by the veil. Once it is uncovered, it is revealed to the faithful. Then, at the Consecration, the host is made visible to the faithful. Hence, Christ has become flesh in the Eucharist. It shows how gradually God reveals Himself to His people.

The Holy of Holies contains the sacred altar where the sacrifice of Christ takes place, along with the tabernacle where the hosts are kept after Mass. It also brings continuity to the Old Testament.

The Holy of Holies in the Old Testament contained the altar of sacrifice and the Ark of the Covenant which contained the tablets of the Ten Commandments. In fact, it was only entered by the high priest once a year on the Day of Atonement. It was considered so sacred that the high priest was tied to a rope so that if anything happened to him, he would have been dragged out. Imagine that.

In the New Testament, the priest offers the Holy Sacrifice of the Mass each and every day. At the same time, the holy of holies is even more sacred now. It is now where Christ the Eternal Son offers Himself for us to the Eternal Father.

How great it is to be a Christian! We can pray to the Holy of Holies whenever we want. We can be with Jesus in the Eucharist whenever we please. The doors of the Church are open for us!

The Society of St. Vincent de Paul
Today we hear Jesus say to us, “...when you hold a banquet, invite the poor, the crippled, the lame and the blind; blessed indeed will you be because of their inability to repay you. For you will be repaid at the resurrection of the righteous.” Humility is recognizing that by God’s choosing us, we are raised up to share in divine riches and bestowed with great dignity of sharing in God’s life. If this is how God relates to us, then this is how the disciples relate to others. As God has bestowed dignity on us, so do we shower others with dignity. Humility is recognizing that we are gifted, enriched and nourished by God so that we can then reach out to others in the same way. What we do for the poor must come, not only from a loving, but also from a humble heart. With love for your neighbors who are poor, crippled, lame or blind, look around your house to see what furniture, household items, and clothing you no longer use...and give it to the Society of St. Vincent de Paul. Thank you.

Focus on Religious Freedom
Lawsuits Often Needed to Restore Freedom of Religion & Speech to Students -
California: The Huntington Beach S.D. agreed to pay attorney costs and a policy change that will permit “students to engage in religious expression without fear of reprisal.” A case was brought on behalf of two students in an elementary school who were denied their First Amendment rights. The principal had barred the students from handing out “Bring Your Bible to School Day” information flyers during the school day, including lunch and recess, due to their religious content. “Bring Your Bible to School Day” has become a national event, in October, in order to counteract the misperceptions created by a 1963 Supreme Court ruling that teacher-led prayer be removed from American public schools. Many people falsely assumed religion had been banned. Too often school officials unfairly infringe on student rights to free speech and confiscate religious themed books read during free time, forbid student prayer during non-instruction time, or ban speech, writing, and artwork with a religious content.
Colorado: The University of Colorado-Colorado Springs, refused to reverse its policy that a Christian group could not require officers and leaders to adhere to Christian principles - until it was sued. The school has now changed its discriminatory policies and must also pay $20,500 in damages, court costs, and attorney fees as part of the settlement. “After they were sued, all of a sudden a higher level of accountability was involved and they decided to change their policies and allow our group to operate freely on campus,” said an Alliance Defending Freedom attorney.

* Florida: University of Florida agreed to stop discriminating against student group Young Americans For Freedom (YAF). The group sued the University alleging the schools’ process of disbursing student fees to fund organizations on campus discriminated against their political views. UF’s Student Government had denied YAF’s request to become a fully budgeted student organization, thus preventing funding requests for guest speaker fees. The YAF chapter agreed to settle its lawsuit against the university in exchange for it eliminating the policies that prohibited the YAF from receiving speaker fees for their likeminded speakers.

The Men of the Way of Light

In this week’s Gospel account of Jesus’ ministry, He teaches a different approach to life. Rather than recommending that we assert ourselves and desires, Jesus recommends that we assert our humility. Humility is an interesting word. It comes from the root word humus, which refers to decayed vegetation, like that which is underfoot when we walk in the woods. It is not very impressive, and certainly not assertive, but through it the soil is enriched, and from it fertile life springs forth. So it is with humility. The humble person is often overlooked and taken for granted but from their life of humble service, great things spring forth. In the end, the humble person is always exalted, perhaps not always by the unknowing masses, but always by a knowing and loving Father.

Mother Teresa is a great example of a Christian who served with humility, and who never sought the higher seat of recognition. Humus very aptly describes her life, living and serving the poorest of the poor, the rejects of society, literally in the dirt and slime of India’s slums. Driven solely by a desire to serve Christ and the poorest of the poor, she was honored by both the secular and the church worlds, granted honorary degrees, awarded the 1979 Nobel Peace Prize, feted by kings, queens, political dignitaries, and popes, yet her humility remained intact. Mother Teresa’s response to all these honors was, “I don’t know why universities are conferring titles on me. I never know whether I should accept or not; it means nothing to me. But it gives me a chance to speak of Christ to people who otherwise may not hear of Him.”

Each day of our lives we are faced with decisions about whether to assert ourselves or to humble ourselves. If we follow the world’s philosophies, we may secure some degree of recognition and material improvement, however with it also comes an emptiness that does not ever fully satisfy. We will never be free from the feeling that we need to assert ourselves in order to receive the honor we deserve. Following Jesus into a life of humility provides the immediate reward of receiving His approval, and the long-range reward of watching Him and others exalt us. The rewards of humility are great, but the greatest reward is the Savior’s approval of a life devoted to Him rather than to serving ourselves. Take the first step in humility and dedicate some time to our Lord. Please join our faith discussion group at our next meeting on Saturday, September 14th, immediately following... the 8:00 AM Mass. We meet in the Nazareth Room of the Holy Family Chapel. Bagels and coffee served. Our meetings run until 10:30 AM. For more information, visit our FaceBook page.
